

VW GTI Forum / VW Rabbit Forum / VW R32 Forum / VW Golf Forum

- Golfmkv.com > Technical Discussions > DIY + Maintenance +

Tips/Tricks

FMIC in winter?

Flash

POST REPLYPage 1 of 2 1 2 >

Thread Tools  Search this Thread  Rate Thread

12-22-2008, 01:11 PM

#1

KnightX

Under construction

Drives: 92 Civic, 07
GTI
Join Date: Jun
2007
Location: Toronto
Posts: 525

FMIC in winter?

Q: so as most of u already the car has a front mount on it and we r not plannin to take it off durin the winter time, so what can u do to keep the salt water from eatin up the intercooler and blockin off some of that cold cold wind?

A: well as most mac truck drivers would do is put a big cardboard over their intercooler to keepin the salt from eatin their shit up and 2 to keep their engine a little warmer and heat up a little faster (yes cold air is good but too cold will just take 4ever to warm up so its not that great in winter)

heres a little DIY i made today on my day off
6 easy step to keep ur intercooler lookin good for next year.

1)take off ur front lower grill

2) get a big cardboard box and put ur gill on it like so

3)cut out the shape of the grill

4)place the pice u cut over the gill and push down all coners

5)make little holes and use zip-ties to hold the cardboard over the honeycomb

6)put the grill back and push in all the tabs and VOILA!!!

Sorry.

This person moved or deleted this image.

photobucket

85 Corolla GT-S (Charged-6psi) N/A
92 Civic Si (N/A) Untuned-162whp/114tq

12-22-2008, 01:39 PM

#2

DanSan

meerkat

Drives: 06' TR GTI(RIP)/09' UG
GTI
Join Date: Oct 2007
Location: Long Island, New York

now just spray the cardboard with a coat of plasti dip and ur golden!

|| RIP GTI | New Build | Flickr | AWE Tuning | Evoms | Billy Boat | APR | FK | Neuspeed ||